For several years David Fincannon has been interviewing some of the members of the pest control industry from the "Greatest Generation". Excerpts from these interviews can be seen at David's YouTube Channel: <http://www.youtube.com/BravoFincannon>

There you will be able to learn from Dr. John Osmun how DDT was initially tested to rid the army barracks of bedbugs and that it was later used to dust the soldiers in Italy to help with the problem of lice and louse borne diseases. Emile Pappas will tell you how the navy valued his ability to create ant baits that could handle the tiny ants trying to transmit diseases to patients on medical ships.

Lonnie Holder will relate his experiences with mixing DDT so the crews of C-47s could spray the island to save the troops from flying pest.

These men share unique stories you might not hear elsewhere that give another perspective of what our WWII veterans contributed during the war.

Insect of the Quarter: Termites

- Their reproductives have wings the same length and a straight waist
- Warm spring days will stir up the reproductives resulting in swarmers that often fly to the windows
- They take years to eat a home

Spring Rains Will Increase Mosquito Populations

While we are all thankful that the cold and ice of winter has passed, the rains of spring will help increase the number of mosquitoes waiting to greet you as you leave your home to enjoy the temperate weather. None of us like these insects.

The bites itch and in some cases they can even transfer diseases to their host. A-All offers yard sprays which can keep you mosquito free for a month. You'll enjoy gardening, swimming, having a picnic with the family in the yard or relaxing with a coffee on the porch with no irritations from mosquitoes. If you are interested, just give us a call and David can come out to look over the yard and give you a bid for this monthly service during the mosquito season.

A-All has an artist in its midst

Tony Scott, technician

Have you ever received a work order from Tony Scott with a doodle on it? If so, we hope he signed his form! Tony has always had a talent for art. He has even drawn some original illustrations of termites and carpenter ants for David's book that is distributed at termite inspections, "Even Termites Have a Taste for Music". One of these illustrations, in fact, is on the inside of this newsletter.

Tony attends various local art fairs with his work. You can also see some of his pieces soon once his website is established.
